IS IN YOUR OWN HAND.

Palmistry assumes to tell what the lines in your hand indicate. It will amuse you, if nothing more. The above diagram almost explains itself. The length of the Line of Life indicates probable age to which you will live. Each BRACELET gives you thirty years. Well-marked Line OF FORTUNE, fame or riches. Both combined mean success in life; but you must keep up with modern ideas to win it. You will find plenty of these in Demorest's Family Magazine, so attractively presented that every member of the family is entertained. It is a dozen magazine, so attractively presented that every member of the family is entertained. It is a dozen magazine, so in the content of the family is content. Line OF HEART bespeaks tenderness; a straight Line OF FATE, penceful life; the reverse if crooked. A well-defined Line OF HEALTH spares you doctors' bills; so will the health hints in Demorest's. No other magazine publishes so many stories to interest the home circle. You will be subject to extremes of high spirits or despondency if you have the GIRDLE OF VENUS well marked; keep up your spirits by having Demorest's Magazine to read. By subscribing to it for 1894 you will receive a gallery of exquisite works of art of great value, besides the superb premium picture, 1722 inches, "I'm a Daisy!" which is almost a real baby, and equal to the original oil baining which cost $300; and you will have a magazine that cannot or great value, oesides the singleto premium picture, it is a Daisy!" which is aimost a real baby, and equal to the original oil painting which cost $300; and you will have a magazine that cannot be equaled by any in the world for its beautiful illustrations and subject matter, that will keep you posted on all the lopies of the day, and all the fads, and different items of interest about the household, besides furnishing interesting reading matter, both grave and gay, for the whole family; and while Demorest's is not a fashion magazine, its fashion pages are perfect, and you get with it, free of cost, all the patterns you wish to use during the year, and in any size you choose. Send in your subscription at once, only $2.00, and you will really get over $25.00 in value. Address the publisher, W. Jennings Demorest, 15 East 14th St., New York. If you are unacquainted with the Magazine, send for a specimen copy. A large QUAD-RANGLE means honesty: a large TRIANGLE, generosity; long FIRST DIVISION OF THUMB, strong will; LONG SECOND DIVISION, reasoning faculty. The MOUNT OF JUPTIER betokeas ambition; that of SATURN, prudence; the SUN, love of splendor; MARS, courage; MOON, imagination; VENUS, love of pleasure; and MERCURY, intelligence. Take our advice as above and you will be sure to possess the last and most valuable quality.

BOB AND MAY.

Bob and May were sweethearts. Of course they were; that's what they had been learning ever since Bob, a stripling of 20, had come out from Tennessee to the Texas Panhandle with the family.

In those days May was a bright haired, high strung little girl of 14 whom Bob never called nor thought of as "red-

Bob was a strong, good humored boy, not a bit afraid of work, and he had a way with him that gave him command of men and creatures. He rose rapidly in old man Love's employ from simple cow puncher to wagon boss, then foreman, and when he was only 25 went, with the approval and good will of his employer, to take the position of ranch manager for a Boston company.

All the world loves a lover. Bob was such a whole hearted one, his state of mind was so patent, he took such delight in it, wore his chains with such open pride and enthusiasm, that all the Panhandle felt with and for him.

And old man Love was pleased enough with the match and greatly given to bragging of Bob as a coming adjunct to the Love greatness, until the tragedy of the one horned brindle cow, which tore things all up generally, threatened to sever two loving hearts and darken forever Bob's and May's happy horizon.

This old cow-worth perhaps $7bobbed up at one of the roundups sporting, in addition to the B N of the Boston National, which was facetiously known as the "Bean" brand, old man Love's (xxx).

Though very uncommon, such accilents may occur in the haste and confusion of branding without necessarily implying dishonesty on some one's While they do sometimes result in fights and killings they are easily enough adjusted between reasonable people, since any clever cattleman can readily tell which brand is of the longer standing.

But any cowboy on the range would have told you that while old man Love was square enough himself he was a crazy crank about the sacredness of his brand. His long suit was to jump up and down and swear that it never yet was on anything that wasn't his own He invariably claimed an animal that bore it in addition to another brand (as did this old cow) however plainly it showed as the newer of the two, though as a matter of fact his branding irons were handled by just as many careless cowboys as any others.

If Bob had known what that aged and damaged brindle cow was going to cost him, he might perhaps have blinked his obvious duty and let old man Love have her-in the face of right and

But he was not the man to be backed down by any one, and he dared the worst-and got it! He held the cow for his company, after a fierce contest, and old man Love went home raging, to give his distorted version of the affair, issue orders that no member of his family was to speak to or of Bob from that time forth, and to remark significantly that he had far rather see a child of his married to a horse thief than to a person capable of such behavior. Communication between the lovers had since been managed, once or twice, by the utmost stealth and secrecy. Having, by this means, been assured of his sweetheart's steadfastness and readiness Bob sent her word by one of her father's cowboys to ride a good horse past the half way branding pen, armed himself with a license and hung around the Triple X ranch for a week. . When May finally found the opportunity to slip away in the most careless manner, with one of the men's sombreros on and in the face of threatening weather, she received a rapturous welcome from the long banished Bob, and they promptly headed their ponies for Squire Wiley's, just the other side of Roaring creek, who was supposed to be nolding himself in readiness for their

What Mexican or other paid spy or what unfriendly or envious hand carried the news to old man Love will not be known, but he burst into one of his near cow camps at dinner, shortly after Bob and May's departure, like a roaring South African lion with mustard in

'The boys''-who knew well enough what was afoot, and what would be asked of them-dropped their tin cups and plates, jumped on their waiting ponies and were out of hailing distance pefore he fairly lit in their midst.

But old Hank Pearsail, the cook, was new man, not long from southwest Texas, neither knowing of nor, caring particularly for Bob Holly and his love affair. So he stood at his official post, at the tail end of the chuck wagon, and gave amiable attention to the impassioned harangue and singular antics of this new and entertaining employer.

Being commanded to come along and assist in dispersing Bob and rescuing May, he mounted a serious appearing but fitful tempered buckskin colored pony, with one white eye and much symmetry of bone—as much of a character in its way as Hank was in hisand started, with considerable interest and curiosity.

They rode hard and were near overhauling the lovers within a mile of Roaring creek. But while pursuer and pursued pushed on at their utmost pace another factor was coming with a hunired times greater speed to take a hand in the game.

The dry bed of Roaring creek was just before them, beyond that a tiny rise, then an arroyo, and beyond that again the roof of the justice's house, just in sight. As Bob and May clattered over the creek bed and scrambled up onto the rise beyond, both looked back, and their ponies stopped, tossing their heads, pricking their ears and snorting at a curious humming sound that suddenly seemed to fill all the air about. "Hurry up, darling," cried Bob, throwing out a hand to catch May's; 'it's a big storm coming from above.' But before they could descend the slope to cross the dry arroyo in front it was running from bank to bank and brimming over with a sudden flood of red, muddy water.

And even above the noise of the flood before them they heard a sound like the angry shouting of furious multitudes. Looking backward and up the creek whence the sounds came they saw a great, tumbling, shuddering wallpushing before it and bearing upon its rest all imaginable sorts of debris-advancing down the dry creek bed with such a thunderous onslaught that the little mound on which they stood shook and seemed fairly to lower under their feet. They looked about them. The arroyo ran into the creek below. Above, both it and the creek had flooded out until they joined. Their little mound was an island, momentarily growing smaller, surrounded on every side by raging torrents, in which were driven and whirled whole trees, full grown cattle, with sometimes a fence post whose trailing wires had caught in

Up came the water about them down fell the big hail. "It's a cloudburst above, darling, their barbs all manner of ghastly wrecksaid Bob. "It won't last long-the water won't cover this rise.' "I'm not afraid, Bob," said May, with very white lips. 'I'm glad I came anyhow. If we've got to die, we'll die together, and the way I've felt a heap better than living apart.' Bob jumped off his pony and lifted May from hers. The hail was coming bigger and beat cruelly upon them.

He wrapped his slicker about her, pushed the ponies close together and sheltered her with them and his own body as best he could. 'We won't die," he said, "but, poor little girl, what an awful storm I've dragged you out into!" Just then, from the farther bank of the creek, above the awful howling of the storm, came this intelligent command in old man Love's ear splitting

"May Love! You come here to me this minute!" And May laughed hys-"Well, he can't get at us : ; way

-but the hail can. Oh, look at your poor hands! Oh, Bob, I can't bear itput the slicker back on!" "Why, honey," said Bob as the tears came in earnest now, "I'd get pounded just the same anyhow, and you must let me have the comfort of keeping some of it off you-it ain't a patchin on the way your pa would do me if he could get me right now." While the storm raged and the water rose nearly to their feet, Hank Pearsall had the almost exclusive benefit of old man Love's remarks, since only his wildest shricks reached the young couple, who were too much absorbed in each other to heed either him or the storm very much.

These remarks disagreed with Mr. Pearsall, who was notoriously a man of judgment and observation 'What's the matter with that young feller?" he queried angrily. "Watch him a-standin to the north'ard uv his gal, a-keeping the hail offen her! He ain't no chump! If he keeps that lick up right through, he'll make a better husband'n what you ever did!". About this time, the hail ceasing, the expectant justice came down to the farther bank of the arroyo. The water was going down visibly, but its roar was still considerable.

"Ho, Bob!" yelled the justice, above its sound, "got your license?" Bob took it out and waved it above his head.

Old man Love could not from where he stood hear a word, but he surmised what had been said, and the sight of the document was a livid red rag to the

"I dare ye to marry 'em," he scream ed. "I dare ye to do it!" And in an ecstasy of rage and anxiety he forced his pony down into the foaming creek among the whirling drift, where he was promptly pitched off by the terrified creature, which instantly returned. Pearsall, at the risk of his own life, had to fish him out, receiving plenty of abuse for his pains and returning it with bitter irony.

In two minutes' time the shallower arroyo was fordable, though the creek, down which big drift continued to come, was not. Bob set May on her pony, mounted his own and prepared to ride out. The sight of the justice-a plains Cupid, with boots, slicker and cowboy hat-preparing to take charge of the pair was too much for old man Love, and dismounted as he was he plunged, in a delirum of rage, into the creek, spluttering and yelling:

"Stop! Hold on! You just dare!" May hesitated, frightened, but old Hank Pearsall yanked her father out again and set him on dry land, snort-

"Doggone ye! I pulled y' out onct before! What fer cain't ye stay out?

"When ye try buckin agin a boy like that, backed by a Texas norther, you're agoin to git left—don't ye know it? That sid's got a double cinch on proverdance! Bet ye he had this hyer storm

JOY IN HEAVEN AND EARTH.

The following chapter by the editor, is reprinted by request from Word and Works for December 1889.] story of the "Babe in the Manger" are human hearts to love and hope. promised as humanity's great Prophand think and sing of the shining angels coming down over the plains of Bethlehem to proclaim to the humb'e and astonished shepherds the glad news of the Savior's birth, How often in our own childhood, as well as man's maturer age, have we in vivid imagination brought the wonderful scene before us and what neffable thrills of joy and surprise, mingled with fear, have we realized. As we have drawn in our hot, childish fancy, a dim Judean landscape, unrolled and slumbering in the soft oriental night, with fleecy clumps of feeding and reclining herds revealed here and there in the pale star-light, with the shepherds here and there, heavy with slumber, prone on the ground or reclining on their crooksthe very stillness of the scene has grown solemnity and impressiveness ipon us. But when on a sudden above it all we see the heavens blaze with an unearthly burst of angelic wings and heard them with their sweet, heavenly faces turned downward upon the astonished watchers, begin their beautiful song which goes on echoing down the ages, we have felt like falling upon the earth with an overpowering wonder that could not hope and fear which could not be de fined. Oh, blessed, cloudless morning of guileless, credulous childhood, we can never return to thy enchanted sanctuary-we shall never hear again from a sweet mother's lips on the glad Christmas morn, the story of the angel announcing the birth of Jesus; but all its beauty and joy and all the immortal hopes kindled by it are with us to this day-a heavenly heritage which none can depreciate or destroy. Amid all the transitoriness of life's unreal and unsubstantial things, the secret of our happiness and hope has been, and it now is, in maintaining that childmindedness which hangs the earth and skies on the happy Chtistmas morning with the tapestries of love and hope and joy and which listens in faith to the angels as they sing: "All glory be to God on high, And to the earth be peace:

The Caneyville Sunday School will not celebrate Christmas by decorating the church and preparing a feast of fruits and candies. Neither will the Sunday School members commit to memory and recite poetry and whole Caneyville has no Sunday School. It is not because Canevville has no little boys and girls, and grown up people, too, that ought to attend Sunday School but because er -well, just because.

Hartford will have a Christmas Tree, however, and she has three Sunday Schools, too, and there will be many a hustling and wide-awake urchin on hand that night to enjoy the blessings of a Sunday School Christmas Tree who hasn't been to Sunday School in six weeks. And there'll be some old sinners there, too, of whom as much could be truthfully said. But such is life and we agree that Caneyville should have a Sunday School as Mr. Newman says.

THE late School Law requires all School-houses "hereafter erected" to be furnished with locks and keys. This is a good law so far as it goes, the fault is that it does not go far dihs were hurried away, one of them enough. The law should require every house to be furnished with lock and key and not limit the requireas these do not compass the death ment to those "hereafter" built. These things will cost but a small outlay of money and will be quite cheap considering their importanc.

So long as the Democratic party could subserve the interests of Slavery and prolong the supremacy of the Slave Oligarchy there were no Democratic Presidents spinning fine theories about "American honor, integrity and morality." A VIPER IN HIS BOSOM.

Mr. Theummer's Hair Whitening Experi-

The bite of a tarantula is as dangerous or as fatal as that of a rattlesnake, and without prompt attention the sufferer dies in an hour or two. It was from one of these creatures that John Thrummer of this place received a fright lately that nearly turned his hair white in a few min-

Putting on his outer shirt a few mornings ago he felt something fall from one of the sleeves onto his breast and through the opening of his undershirt onto his naked flesh. Looking down he saw an enormous spider coiled up and seemingly half dead from cold. But getting warmed with the heat of his body it presently began to straighten out its long limbs covered with coarse, red bristles, and before Thrummer could knock it out was plainly its old aggressive self.

Mr. Thrummer did not dare seize it with his fingers lest it fasten on them, nor did he dare to make any movement to dislodge it for fear that it would instantly fix its jaws in his flesh. He called his wife softly, but she was still asleep. He dare not lean over to touch her, so he continued to call her softly until at lastshe opened her eyes. Then he told her to get up and take the tongs and remove the creature as quickly as possible so as not to give it warning of what she was about, lest it might bite him.

Mrs. Thrummer, from her husband's quiet tone, thought at first that he was jesting and pulled open the shirt to look for herself, when she saw the tarantula. The creature also saw her, and still clinging to the man's breast bristled all over with menace. Therefore getting up without more noise than could be helped she ran for the tongs and approached the spot where the insect lay. But as if it divined that she was about to seize it, it suddenly ran up to Mr. Thrummer's left shoulder and over on his back. Only able to guess at its exact whereabouts Mrs. Thrummer was at first afraid to try and seize it for fear that she would not locate it right and that it would bury its terrible fangs in her husband. But at last, seeing it move slightly, she made a sudden plunge at it, and catching it well between the prongs of the tongs held it firmly, squeezing it as tightly as she could, endeavoring to kill it or at least render it so that it would not be able to bite. Another of the family now coming in, the shirt was cut away. Thrummer was so nervous that he sobbed like a child. Mrs. Thrummer let go her hold, and the giant spider fell to the floor.

But though badly crushed, it was not dead and showed fight at once. It ran at Mrs. Thrummer fiercely, attempting to get at her bare foot, and had to be beaten off with a broom. It was finally captured and confined in a box with a glass top, but in a few days stung itself to death. It would fling itself upon the walls of its prison and endeavor to seize the wood with its mandibles in a sort of fury. Mr. Thrummer is of the belief that were these creatures substi tuted for snakes the whole world would be prohibitionist. The one that paid him so unwelcome a visit was one of the largest ever seen in these parts, nearly covering, with its legs extended, a large saucer. Electrical Tanning. In a recent lecture delivered at the Royal institution, London, on the advanced chemical, metallurgical and manufacturing processes of the present time, Dr. Swinburne made special reference to electrical tanning and to the remarkable results which had been obtained by means of a combination of electrical current and mechanical agitation. Though the phenomenon has not yet been theor-etically and thoroughly investigated, Dr. Swinburne is of the opinion that what takes place is electricosmosis. The skins are full of minute interstices, and also of minute cells, and though the agitation suffices to hasten the penetration of tanning fluid into the interstices something more subtle is required to force through the walls of the cells. Referring to the subject of electrol ysis, he showed that of water, with a current of about 30 amperes, 100 erful that it maintains a brilliant arc light under the surface of the water, and even fuses the point of the iron anobe. Those experiments, it is easy to see, are of an important practical

Very Dear at the Price. Queen Caroline, the wife of George II. seriously thinking of closing St. James park, in London, and turning it into a garden for the palace, asked Sir Robert Walpole what it would cost to do so. "A trifle, madam; only a trifle," replied the minister. "A trifle?" rejoined her majesty. "I know it must be pretty expensive, but can't you tell me as nearly as you can guess?" To which Sir Robert answered, "Why, madam, I believe Hartford, Ky. This the whole thing will cost but three crowns." The queen had sense enough to see Walpole's allusion to the insures prompt attencrowns of England, Scotland and Ireland and said at once that she would abandon the notion .- New York

Spent It on Principle. David Paul Brown, the well known Philadelphia lawyer, was, even as a youth, very careless of money. Moreover he used to say that this disregard of wealth was a matter of principle. TWO CITIES.

For some time Badgertown had entertained the most perverse antagonism toward Alkali City, and, on the other hand, Alkali City had looked upon Badgertown with supreme contempt.

Each town regarded the other as a trespasser and a menace to the prosperity of Cactus county, and each claimed the sovereign right to become the county seat when the new county should be organized. "Jist ter think," exclaimed Nathan Skidmore, the mayor of Alkali City, "uv a town uv only 74 inhabitants claimin the right ter the county seat over a city uv nearly 100 population! Hit's preposterous!'

"Hit's outrageous an desarves the contempt uv every intelligent squatter on Coyote prairie," observed Bill Barondollar, a muscular six footer from Missouri who had cast his fortunes with Alkali City. "Seems ter me," he went on, "that hit's nothin better 'an a confidence game ter git strangers ter stop in Badgertown.

'Why," he continued, getting warmed up with the subject, "the mayor uv Badgertown has had the gall ter actually ask strangers ter come thar an meck thar homes; had a circular printed. which sez that the town is on the eve uv a great boom-finest location on Coyote prairie, rich soil, fine water, Italyon climant, an the only live city in Cactus county! Blame take the onery cuss! Hain't Alkali City in Cactus county? Hang my looks, if it ain't a downright insult ter"-

"Bill," interrupted the mayor, removing the cob pipe from his mouth and fixing a look of incredulity upon the speaker, "ken ye produce that circular?

'Hyar it is,' responded Barondollar, drawing out a greasy, well worn document from his pocket and handing it to

Nathan Skidmore took the paper and read it through with a thoughtful coun-

"I'll be hanged," he broke forth, "if it ain't enough to send every cuss in Badgertown ter the pen'tentiary-hit just is-er I'm a liar an don't know my own name!" And he shook his fist in the direction of the despised city. "The correct thing ter do, accordin ter my judgment," pursued the mayor, "is ter call a meetin uv the board uv trade uv Alkali City an provide measures fer the abatement uv public noosances, an I think"----"Badgertown would come under that head," broke in Barondollar. 'Nathan." said Barondollar. what method would ye perpose ter settle the difficulty?" 'This,' and Nathan Skidmore tapped a six shooter that harg at his side. Barondollar nodded his approval of the mayor's method, and the two separated for the night, Barondollar going to his cabin, a short distance away. The next day at an early hour a meeting of the Alkali City board of trade was called, and its members assembled in Bill Barondollar's cabin. The mayor was the first to address the meeting.

"Feller citizens an members uv the board uv trade," he began, "we hev met fer the consideration uv a question which is uv the most vital importance fer every citizen uv Alkali City. Badgertown, it seems, hev issued a circular which reflects on the good uv this city, an as I am honored by bein the chief magistrate uv the same I feel that, in justice ter myself an worthy feller citizens, some action should be taken at once ter vindicate ourselves in the eyes uv the world an the intelligent squatters uv Cactus county."

"How shall this be accomplished?" continued the official when the enthusiasm had subsided.

"I can't meck no speech," said Jim Budlow, "but I'm hyar ter say that I indorse every word our honorable mayor hev sed, an I think we orter form ourselves inter an investigation committy an ride over to Badgertown, an if they don't 'pologize an meck amends for their conduct meck an example out ov

"My idy egzactly," chimed in Bill Barondollar, and this opinion was speedily ratified by the entire crowd. Then the meeting adjourned.

A half hour later a delegation of armed and mounted men, headed by the mayor, left Alkali City and galloped swiftly toward Badgertown. "Boys," says Barondollar, "if they don't do the square thing"-"Fix 'em so they'll wish they had, broke in Joe Budlow, jerking his hand in the direction of a heavy six shooter that protruded from under his loose

"Ye air ter do nothin without orders from me," said the mayor in a voice of command. "I'm the commander uv this company, an I'll give the orders at the

A cluster of miserable little shanties scattered about the wind swept prairie were all the indications of a town to be seen. In front of one of the shanties a little crowd of men was collected conversing in low tones.

The men from Alkali City approached. The mayor was the first to speak. Stepping to the front of the crowd, he

"Gentlemen of Badgertown, ye see before ye a committy uv citizens uv Alkali City, appointed by the board uv trade ter investigate the lyin an slend'rous stories ve have been circulatip regardin our city, an ter ask ye ter 'poligize in a fittin manner er suffer the consequences-which means that we intend to tear down this dilapidated chicken ranch, scatter its ricketty henroosts ter the four winds, an administer sich chastisement ter the defamers uv our city as will sarve as a lastin warnin ter all like offenders in the future! Bring out yer mayor an council, that we may feast our eyes on the biggest liars that ever issued a real estate circular or laid out a town"

The sound of a woman weeping bitterly came from within the building, and the mayor paused and cast a questioning glance at the men before him. "Hit's the mayor of Badgertown in thar," said one of the men, nodding toward the shusty. "He was throwed from his hoss and killed this mornin."

The men from Alkali City exchanged swift glances, but none of them spoke. One of the strangers standing near by now turned to the man nearest him and

'It'll be hard on his poor wife an children. They hain't got hardly noth in ter live on, I reckon.'

Meanwhile Abe Horner, the marshal of Badgertown, had gathered a little crowd of citizens about him and was talking earnestly.

"Boys," he said, "I hain't got much ter give, but I'm goin ter give all I can ter help the pore widder an family uv little children, an I know ye'll do the

The marshal took off his hat, and dropping several pieces of silver into it proceeded to make a financial tour through the crowd, and for some time the clinking of falling coin was the only sound that broke the stillness.

While this was going on the chief of Alkali City and his followers were conversing in low tones.

"From all appearances," said the mayor, "I-I reckon we hev"--"Made big fools of ourselves!" finished Bill Barondollar. "That's whatever!" agreed the mayor with an emphatic nod of the head. see that them fellers over thar air gettin up a little pu's' for the pore family, an when it comes ter that I 'low Alkali

City ain't broke. Is she, boys?" 'Not by a jugful!" responded Barondollar, "an if we can't give more 'an them fellers gives I'm in favor uv us walkin back ter town an gettin our names changed," and this sentiment was ratified by the entire delegation.

"I'll jist open the subscription with a few of these," said the mayor, taking off his hat and dropping a handful of silver into it.

His example was followed by all the others, and his hat soon resembled the specie vault of a small savings bank. 'Now," said the magistrate, "we'll see how them other fellers air succeedin, an ef we hain't doubled 'em we'll meck another assessment.

With this he approached the crowd of Badgertown citizens and said: "Gentlemen, I see ye hev been takin up a little collection fer the pore widder an children. How much have ye got?"

'Bout $25," was the reply. "Waal," answered the mayor," Alkali City wants ter play in this yere game, an hyar's her bit—'bout $200, 1 reck-on," and he emptied his hat at the feet of the astonished crowd.

Then, without waiting to hear the expressions of gratitude that rose to the lips of the amazed citizens of Badgertown, he turned and walked away.

A few moments later the whole Alkali City delegation mounted their horses and galloped out of town and were soon lost to sight over a swell in the prairie.

For half an hour they rode before a the silence:

The Pomaks of Rhodope. Who on earth, or what on earth, are the Pomaks? is the question which will suggest itself to most of those who glance at the heading of this article. The Pomaks are Bulgarophone Mohammedan Bulgarians-that is to say, they are Bulgarians who have adopted the creed of Islam, but retained their own language. With their native speech they have preserved certain usages and customs of their own race, thus affording to the ethnologist an admirable field for speculation as to the extent to which a change of religion, unaccompanied by other influences, can modify the ingrained characteristics of a nation.

There are Pomaks in many parts of Bulgaria, but the Pomak territory par | that if we had avoided fusion, and the rest for the fishes of the sea .excellence lies in the wildest, remotest region of the Balkan peninsula, in the heart of Rhodope, a terra incognita to the European traveler, and known only by report to the neighboring races; in ancient days the haunt of the frenzied Bacchantes.

Of that wild rout that tore the Thracian bard rapture, till the savage clamor drowned and in later times the inaccessible retreat of fierce, fanatical mountaineers, who scorned for centuries the rule of Turk and Christian alike, and bravely resisted every effort to bring them into subjection. It was only quite recently that a Bulgarian force succeeded in occupying the remoter portion of the Pomak territory assigned seven years ago by the convention of Top Khane to Eastern Roumelia.-Fortnightly Re-

Cheap and Dangerous Toothbrushes. An operation for appendicitis upon a patient living in this state revealed the fact that the disorder was due to the presence of tooth brush bristles. It Puzzled Her.

A real backwoods woman, born and bred through a long life in the Vermont hills, was lately transported by a relative to the heart of Boston culture. She was taken to lectures on every "ism" and "ology," to talks on dress reform and exhibitions of model living. The effect of it all was to be seen in a soliloup overheard one night as the poor old soul was trudg-ty, but it is manifest that if any reing up stairs to bed: "No hell, no flannel petticoat," she murmured drearily. Words of Wisdom. The following letter was written by Judge B. L. D. Guffy, of Morgantown, to the National View, Washington, D. C., of date November 25, 1893: "The purchasing clause of the Sherman law has been repealed, but no revival of business except a Waterloo defeat of the Democratic party, for which let us all give thanks. The persistent claim of the Democracy to be in favor of silver money enabled it to get into power and then it made haste to demoralize silver, of course nothing but defeat could be reasonably expected. The result of the election disproves the oft repeated asword was spoken. Then the mayor broke sertion of the repealers that the people were for repeal. The election also proves that the people are still determined to still vote either the Democratic or Republican tickets, and evidence conclusive that the People's Party or Populist Party is dead, at least not a factor in politics. For eighteen or twenty years divers efforts have been made to organize new parties in order to reform our money system. All of them have proved dismal failures except the Greenback party. It did cause a repeal of the law requiring the burning up of the greenback money and caused the passage of the Bland silver law. I still > tor in potitics. Party was a misfortune I did what I could to promote the movement I hoped that with the great number demanding reform, and with the object lesson of the fate of the Greenback party that we could finally win, but very soon the new party went into the fusion business and allowed itself to be loaded down with new and extreme demands to such an extent that stuck to the money question that we would have become an important fac-defeat was inevitable. "The movement has well nigh exinguished the F. & I. U. It also weakened the cause of silver by linking with it so many socialistic demands. I efflisted in the monetary reform army in 1875 and devoted time and money to the cause. I warned the people in Greenback days against loading us down with new demands. "After the organization of the Peoole's Party I saw the same danger and again cried out agaist it, but all to no purpose. I still supported the party. even voted the ticket at the recent election, but the party is now dead and the thing to do is to unite with the Republican party. That party did establish the fact that money could be legally made of paper not redeemable on demand. It gave us that Roubo has had the sketches of a better banking system than the the three carriages on his plate 172 Democrats ever did. It gave us a better banding system than the Democrats ever did. If we continue to

"If we unite with the Republicans we may be able to convince some of them and obtain some reform. No it has stood in the way of all reform. Twenty years ago there were efforts made in several states for reform

"The Democrats proceeded to endorse the demands and get control of most if not all the machinery of such movements and then smother them. They proceeded in the same way with the Grange, the Greenback Party, the Alliance and the free silver question. In short it has been the policy of the Democratic party to endorse all 1eforms where the reforms are popular and then to smother them or destroy them in some way. "The Republican party has not advocated all measures that to me seems necessary, else I would not have left them to become a Greenbacker nor to help build up the People's Parform is to come it must come through the Republican party or through some party yet unborn.

"It is certain the people will not vote the so-called l'opulist Party into power else they would have at least cast a good vote for that ticket at the last election The Democrats had demonetized silver. The Republican and yet the Populists were insignificant even in Iowa and Ohio, where the Democrats had heretofore run on free silver platforms and this year on a gold standard one, yet the people would not vote the Populist ticket to any considerable extent.

"I think if we had stuck to the Ocala platform that .he people would have rallied to us this year, but the opportunity has passed. If all of us had gone into the Republican party in 1891 and devoted the time and money to financial reform that we have done, we would likely have had free comage of silver now, My ad We parted in silence-our cheeks were vice to all reformers, including the Prohibition Party, is unite with the Republican party.

"We may not achieve all the reforms desired by so doing.

"We are certain, as I think, to achieve none through any other party in existence. B. L. D. GUFFY. M. rgantown, Ky , Nov. 18, 1893.

"Yes," he said, "I like the business first rate, and I get lots of tips, and I expect soon to be able to set up for myself. But there is one drawback about it. I can't eat onions. A barber whose breath smelled of onions would never secure steady customers. Now, I am an Italian and passionately fond of onions. I'd rather eat them than anything I know ofexcept, perhaps, garlic. No man ever yearns after a drink more than I do after onions. It is the hardest kind of a trial to have to keep a castiron grip on my appetite all the time. A Cat Story.

A New Hampshire physician sends the following cat story to the Philadelphia Times, for which he vouches: Among other queer tricks Dick will take off my glasses very carefully with his paw, hold them with one claw and survey them with great apparent interest. The first time he did this was one night when he had been napping and I reading. "He is a great pet, and going to him I bent over without indicating by any motion my meaning and said gently, "Dick, if you want to go to bed, take off my glasses." He immediately reached up a paw and took them off as deftly as though it were an old habit.

"Thinking this a 'happen so,' I put them on and made the same request in different words, with precisely the same result. After one more repetition he yawned and plainly intimated that was enough.

Parisian Dressmakers' Charges. The great Parisian dressmakers have a custom of charging a married woman more for her gowns than an unmarried woman is asked. An American lady, in Paris, recently commented upon this difference, which she had observed to the extent of $50 in two dresses identically alike. "Ah!" exclaimed the great modiste why not?
